based ink to paper. It is distinguished from earlier dip pens by using an internal reservoir to hold ink, eliminating the need to repeatedly dip the pen in an inkwell during use. The pen draws ink from the reservoir through a feed to the nib and deposits the ink on paper via a combination of gravity and capillary ...

Fountain pen - Wikipedia

Fountain pens are the peak of fine writing, and quality pens. They are an elegant, traditional tool that provides a writing experience far superior to any of the other pen types. Fountain pens operate by ink from a converter or ink cartridge feeding down via gravity through a nib unit and distributing itself onto the paper in an even stroke. They have been around for decades, and the efficiency ...

What Is A Rollerball Pen? As we noted in our rollerball vs. ballpoint guide, a rollerball is a pen that uses water-based ink where a ballpoint pen uses oil-based ink. Rollerballs use smaller writing tips — usually 0.5 mm or 0.7 mm — because their ink spreads out on the paper and forms lines that are wider than the tip of the pen.
